

ABC'S TOP PERFORMERS 2022

ABC 2022 Top Performers Find Power and Purpose in Their People

Humanity has used tools to build and create since the Stone Age. But when the Industrial Revolution introduced power sources such as electricity, steam, water and batteries for centuries-old tools, productivity, efficiency and precision exploded. Adding power to human innovation creates something greater. ABC members build America, and the industry leaders who built this year's Top Performers give power and purpose to merit shop construction.

We recently connected with a handful of this year's top-performing contractors, and while the questions, conversations and specialties varied, the common thread was apparent by the quotes below: These industry leaders invest in and attribute their successes to their people.

"Everyone's ideas are sacred."

"We mentor teammates and help guide them on their path to success."

"Everyone on the team has a say in how things will be done."

"We let employees decide how they can focus on tasks, and we do not micromanage."

"Everyone has a seat at the table; we are all ears."

"An entrepreneurial spirit is baked into our culture, and we encourage employees to find a path to personal growth and success."

"Some of our best ideas for improvement come from the people doing the work every day."

The value propositions of the companies on ABC's fourth annual Top Performers lists give their employees purpose, deliver for their clients and add to their bottom lines.

"We become an extension of our clients—their right hand and advocate, so to speak," said Stephanie Schmidt, president of Poole Anderson Construction in State College, Pennsylvania. "We do this by understanding what is important to them and by learning their expectations through our highly collaborative processes. We then transparently execute their vision, continuously reviewing the project status against the plan to ensure a high probability of success for all stakeholders."

A versatile general contractor that services sectors like higher education, health care, hospitality and multifamily residential, Poole Anderson is client-centric and adds value to its bottom line through monthly forecasting. In turn, that's used to develop their employees.

"We use the in-depth analysis of our projects' health as a mentoring opportunity for our project teams," said Schmidt of the 40-year member company. Schmidt serves as the 2022 chair of the ABC National board of directors.

When seeing value propositions and bottom-line best practices like these, it is no surprise that ABC Top Performers attract and retain top talent.

Rhonda Bridgeman, president of Comfort Systems of Virginia Inc. in Chesapeake, Virginia, said that continually assessing her company's business process is the value her team brings to the table. Comfort Systems of Virginia specializes in services like HVAC, mechanical piping and sheet metal.

"We always close out a project with a review so that we know exactly what occurred," said Bridgeman, who just completed 18 months as the chair of the board of directors of ABC Virginia Chapter. "We focus on how to repeat the good things and how to rectify the not-so-good things."

Turner Industries in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, has been a member of ABC for more than four decades. "ABC is part of our DNA now," said Stephen Toups, president and CEO of Turner.

The value proposition of the full-service industrial general contractor is simple: One solution for the client's success.

"We provide 58 services to an industrial facility, and by doing that we can lower the client's total cost of ownership," said Toups of Turner, which offers construction, maintenance, turnaround, equipment, fabrication and specialty services to refining, petrochemical, power and renewable energy clients.

This value proposition correlates with Turner's bottom line while prioritizing people first.

"Turner believes 'ROI' means return on integrity," said Toups. "That means doing something right the first time and taking the time necessary to deliver it right the first time."

The Power & Construction Group in Rochester, New York, is a vertically integrated gas and electric utility contractor. With an impressive experience modification rating of 0.73, P&CG's value proposition and bottom line depend on its people.

"P&CG relies on a wide variety of internal resources for specialized skills to take on challenging projects others shy away from," said Thomas "Murph" Murphy, vice president of P&CG, who also serves on ABC National's executive committee as Northeast Region vice chair. "Better margins and opportunities require a quality workforce."

Rob Strobel, president of Lithko Contracting in West Chester, Ohio, said the full-service, commercial concrete contracting company focuses on process and execution.

"We are data-driven, and our co-workers rapidly become experts in the field of concrete construction, not only as builders of buildings but also as builders of teams and builders of businesses," said Strobel. "The timeliness and accuracy of our information allow us to make adjustments more quickly than anyone in the industry, which helps us minimize waste.”

Faith Technologies Inc. in Menasha, Wisconsin, an ABC member since 1976, operates in the construction, engineering, manufacturing and renewable energy sectors. FTI’s value proposition “creates success for our partners and team members through innovation and expertise, rethinking how energy is designed, applied and consumed and providing solutions that go beyond the ideas of today.”

Tom Clark, chief experience officer at FTI, went on to say that this proposition adds value to his company’s bottom line by fostering a culture of continuous improvement.

“FTI’s Project Innovation Award Program recognizes and rewards employees and teams for innovative ideas that make work safer, more efficient and more productive,” said Clark. “Individual and team submissions are reviewed quarterly, with monetary awards given to ideas that result in a demonstrable improvement in safety and add customer value. These ideas are implemented companywide as new best practices.”

When seeing value propositions and bottom-line best practices like these, it is no surprise that ABC Top Performers attract and retain top talent.

“We are a family-oriented business, so we are not just making decisions from a profit margin perspective,” said Bridgeman.

Several ABC Top Performers executives explained that their employees chart their own career pathways by how they define success.

“We embrace inclusiveness of thought, and that gives people a sense of value,” said

Toups. “It is good to respect backgrounds and life experiences. Ask someone’s opinion.”

“P&CG is owned by our working officers, who own shares, so that ensures personal vested interest from your talent,” said Murphy. “We are always looking to the next generation to see who will run the company in the future.”

“FTI has adopted a culture of care that emphasizes treating team members with kindness, respect and compassion,” said Clark. “We work to create an environment that is diverse and inclusive, and that supports the physical and mental well-being of our employees.”

“We hire people to be company people, not just a hire. We are a company built on mutual respect for all.”

—Stephanie Schmidt, President
Poole Anderson Construction
State College, Pennsylvania

“Poole Anderson believes in developing people,” said Schmidt. “We hire people to be company people, not just a hire. We are a company built on mutual respect for all.”

As an Accredited Quality Contractor, ABC Top Performers are committed to corporate responsibility in quality, safety, talent management, craft and management education and community relations. When asked to highlight how their company is committed to just one of these pillars, these Top Performers exemplified the merit shop at its finest.

“Quality encompasses everything,” said Schmidt. “We use it as a plan and a way of life. Quality is infused throughout every aspect of the business: how we conduct ourselves, communicate, plan and execute our work, identify expectations and stay true to the plan.”

ABC Top Performers are thought leaders in the construction industry, so we asked them which one trend they would be watching in 2022.

“Stellar craft and management education [are key],” said Bridgeman. “We believe in letting individuals determine their career dreams, and they are involved in their career path planning. We provide many methods for our people to learn.”

“Talent management [is important],” said Touns. “We develop the people in the company and those that could work for the company. When you develop people, quality will come, safety will come, community relations will grow.”

Others responded with safety.

“Working safely is a mindset we cultivate with our culture of engagement and accountability,” said Strobel. “We accomplish this by making safety fundamental to everything we do, from our initial bid all the way to our morning project meetings.”

“FTI has an uncompromised focus on keeping people safe; this is the first of our core values,” said Clark. “When leaders embrace safety, safety becomes an integral part of the working culture companywide.”

ABC Top Performers are thought leaders in the construction industry, so we asked them which one trend they would be watching in 2022. Technology, innovation, supply chain bottlenecks, high materials prices and labor shortages were among the most common answers. To that end, the biggest concern for ABC's Top Performers is the uncertainty surrounding variables like the supply chain and the talent pool.

“Most successful construction companies pride themselves on the ability to predict an outcome,” said Schmidt. “The uncertain variables have become so great that predictability is becoming an almost impossible thing to offer.”

“This industry faces unknowns all the time, but none of us know how to navigate the aftermath of the pandemic,” said Touns.

“Comfort Systems of Virginia is implementing different thought processes,” said Bridgeman. “It's challenging, but an opportunity to teach our people how to be more efficient.”

The 2022 Top Performers plan to capitalize on those challenges and turn them into opportunities.

“The biggest concern for the industry in 2022 is the labor shortage, but this also becomes the biggest opportunity,” said Strobel. “Those who can figure out how to accelerate talent via technology, engagement, development and exposure will make the biggest strides.”

“We have the opportunity to tell the story of construction to attract not just young people but anyone looking to make a difference,” said Bridgeman. “There is nothing more rewarding than riding down the road and seeing something that you have built and created. I think now the country is starting to understand the story.”

ABC's Top Performers Achieve Excellence in Construction

What defines the best of the best? ABC's Top Performers lists—the only rankings of their kind—recognize member contractors' achievements in safety, quality, inclusion, diversity and equity, project excellence and special designations, ranked by work hours.

The listings highlight contractors that won national Excellence in Construction,® Safety Excellence and Inclusion, Diversity and Equity Excellence awards in 2021; and those that hold designations awarded to diverse companies to help procure work from government and private entities. All Top Performers must demonstrate world-class safety performance by achieving Gold status or higher in ABC's STEP Safety Management System in 2021.

The separate lists identify the Top 200 Performers, Top 125 General Contractors, Top Trade Contractors, Top Electrical Contractors, Top Plumbing/HVAC Contractors, Top Specialty Contractors and Top Performers by Market, all of which have earned the elite Accredited Quality Contractor credential. The Top Performers With Special Designations hold one or more special designations. The companies are ranked by size based on the number of hours worked in 2020 as reported in their 2021 STEP applications.
