Chief Technology Officer, Jason Floyd

Jason Floyd joined Source Inc in 2007 with ten years prior experience in the cellular/wireless industry and over four years experience as a computer and network technician. Focused on the development of handsets, wireless operating systems, cellular software integration, and development of new methods and processes for business optimization and simplification.

Combined with experience from working more than eight years with Sprint in supporting and implementing products at Sprint, Jason has developed practical experience relating to:

- Launching new products
- Project management
- Creating device and product certifications
- Developing documentation for supporting both new and existing products
- Creating training guides at both a technical and entry level
- Participating and facilitated live on-site training programs for both user groups
- Managing technical groups for resolving high visibility issues
- Championing and implementing major initiatives acting as the lead fix agent
- Technical subject matter expert

As related to business opportunity, Jason has presented to countless customers at all levels of business management, including CEO/CIO level. Collaborating with Product Development, Sales, IT, and Network departments to manage vendor/partner relationship with multiple Fortune 500 companies, Jason has been a key to the foundation of many business processes.

Jason has held and been received technical and sales certifications for many products and technologies through years of experience and job details, including; Cisco, Microsoft, RIM, Qualcomm, Samsung, Cradlepoint, Sierra Wireless, Peplink, Encore and Digi.